A Letter from the President

MAKING THE HOLIDAYS WORK FOR YOU

Have you ever heard of the NFR? It is nothing like what we have embedded in our heads like ACA, PDQ, NRA, FBI or CIA, etc. By the way, in case you aren't aware, ACA stands for Toro's awesome After Cut Appearance; the other ACA is what's going on in the White House.

Eddie Clark
PTP President

Ok, back to the NFR...it stands for National Finals Rodeo and it just wrapped up on Saturday, December 14th. I had the pleasure of attending this event this year. Obviously, the competitors come from all over, but I found myself cheering especially loud for those who came from parts of PTP's territory such as the cowboys and cowgirls from places like Idabel, OK; Lonedale, MO; Pratt, KS; Sulphur, LA; and Decatur and Desdemona, Texas. The NFR has been held in Las Vegas for the past 10 years, although it started in Dallas back in 1959 and then moved to Oklahoma City in 1965. I'm sure more than a few of you may not have been born when it started and even some of your parents might have been taking just their first baby steps. It's all about tradition and competition so if you get a chance to go to the NFR, or any local rodeo for that matter, giddy up and take advantage of

PTP MISSION STATEMENT - Our mission is to exceed the needs of both our internal and external customers with services supporting the sale and distribution of our products.

A summer storm billows over Kansas last summer. Storms across the Great Plains triggered tornadoes from April through November with some storms spawning multiple tornadoes and causing billions of dollars in damage. The 2013 hurricane season was one of the most docile in years.

based on collective strength and duration of named storms and hurricanes, the 2013 season is expected to rank as the sixth least-active Atlantic season since 1950.

"We definitely had struggling systems this year," Long-Range Forecaster Bob Smerbeck said. "Dust usually settles down when you get into the meat of the season but dry air stayed around this season." Over the course of the season, only one storm made land-fall in the United States. Named Andrea, it was the first Atlantic storm of the season and brought severe weather, including tornadoes, heavy rain and flooding to parts of the South, killing one.

Hurricanes Blew It By Not Showing Up In 2013

As the 2013 Atlantic hurricane season drew to a close Nov. 30, it closed the door on a season with the fewest number of hurricanes since 1982, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

Overall, 13 systems spun up in the basin since June 1, one more than average for the season. Hurricanes, however, were in short supply. Only two, Ingrid and Humberto, formed this season, compared to the average of six. Of those two, neither became major hurricanes. A major hurricane is defined as a storm that reaches Category 3 or higher. Typically, the Atlantic yields three major hurricanes per season. Though the tropics looked prime for an active season back in June, several factors developed which inhibited the strengthening of the storms. Additionally, cold water nosing southwestward in the eastern Atlantic and a significant amount of African dust further stifled the set up for stronger, longer-lasting storms.

this awesome competition. Take your kids, friends, brothers, sisters, nieces, nephews, parents and grandparents; you will not be disappointed!

Those of you who have been in the chutes waiting to ride a bull or bronco, waiting to ride out on a horse at full speed and turn on a dime around three barrels, trying to lasso calves while you're counting on your cutting horse to do what it's been trained to do, or just clowning around in order to keep the cowboys safe, you have a gift and I thank you for keeping this culture alive and strong. It's amazing to see the different types of people who come to the rodeo, especially in Las Vegas, which attracts all sorts of people and provides lots of great people watching I might add, but that's another subject entirely. Even people who are as different as night and day seem to be of one singular mind when the announcer shouts out "God Bless America"... kind of makes you want to be a cowboy, if even for a day! Every rodeo event held across the nation starts with a prayer of thanks and gratitude for our great nation and a request to keep the cowboys and cowgirls safe, as well as a blessing for the animals. The lights are turned down low and everyone is standing, hats off, and quiet as mice. When the prayer ends, 'Old Glory' is held by a rider on a beautiful horse standing alone and still in the middle of the arena, lit by a single bright spotlight. Someone sings our National Anthem and you find yourself with a lump in your throat feeling the pride that most of the other 18,000 spectators feel too-it's truly a special experience and makes you glad that this most American of traditions, which is deeply rooted in our identity as a country, has endured and flourished all these years.

The NFR I attended made me reflect on all that's great in our country. I'm feeling pride about a lot of things lately; pride for our country and the people who serve to protect it, pride for the American way of life that all of us work hard to enjoy, pride for all of the employees who make up the awesome team we have at Professional Turf Products, and pride and gratitude for the relationships and friendships we've built along the way. For that I thank you and say, "God Bless America"!

Wishing you the best in 2014!

Toro Introduces New RapidSet™ Arc Adjustment for Tall T5 Series Rotor

Arc Adjustments can be made quickly using NO TOOLS

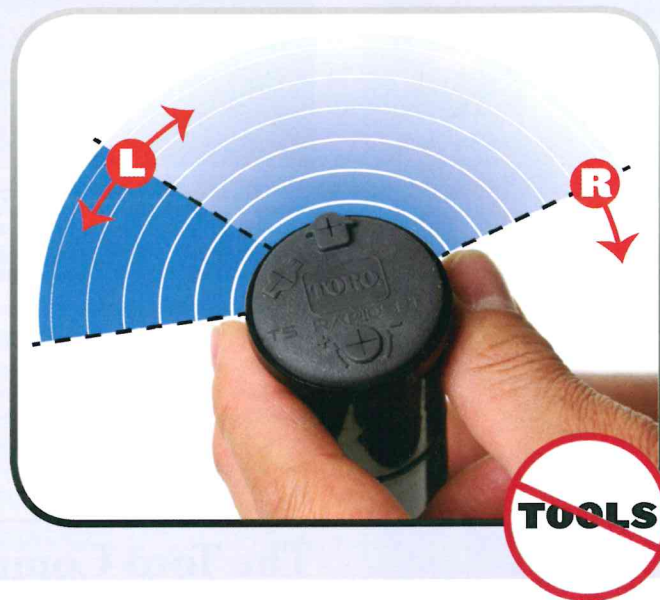

The T5 Series is packed with innovative features including an industry-leading 5" pop-up height, advanced nozzle technology, superior, debris-tolerant seal, and more. And now, Toro is enhancing this revolutionary rotor with the new RapidSet™ feature. RapidSet offers a quick and effortless way to adjust rotor arc settings – with NO TOOLS required!

RapidSet technology works by simply turning the rotor past its current trip points. Turn the head clockwise to shift the entire arc; turn the head counter-clockwise to increase the arc pattern.

A built-in "slip clutch" protects the gears when making these simple adjustments.

The T5 also features a high-performance, patent-pending Airfoil™ nozzle design. Toro's cutting-edge design produces higher distribution uniformity than competitive rotors. The Airfoil™ technology creates a low pressure zone under the nozzle stream to gently glide water downward for close-in watering that won't wash away seeds, making it ideal for grow-in applications.

Contact PTP today for the more info on the Tall T5 Series Rotor.

Smart Stow Consumer Mower

Toro has come up with a solution for all those overcrowded garages and sheds stuffed full of outdoor power equipment. A new self-propelled Recycler model that Toro has released offers "Smart-Stow," a feature that lets you not only collapse the mower's handle but also stand the mower completely upright. By reducing the mower's footprint, you may even be able to fit your car into the garage!

Introduced earlier at this year's Green Industry & Equipment Exposition in Louisville, the new 22-inch model also has a Briggs & Stratton engine dubbed Mow 'N' Stow that comes with redesigned seals, gaskets, and fuel tank, and a carburetor that won't leak through air intake holes when the mower is upended.

And there's another benefit to the Mow 'N' Stow engine in that it makes it easier to perform such maintenance as sharpening the blade, which normally requires you to tip the mower over. When tipped, the typical mower will spill gasoline if its fuel tank is full. With Mow 'N' Stow, there's no need to wait until the tank has been run dry to perform routine upkeep. Check out the Mow 'N' Stow at PTP today!

Gettysburg Address still has plenty to teach us on its 150th Birthday

It was seven score and 10 years ago, a beleaguered and haggard leader stood before a solemn scene and spoke just 272 words — words that rival the Declaration of Independence and many other historic utterances in United States history.

On Nov. 19, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg Address at the dedication of the National Cemetery. The entire speech was so concise that the photographer covering the event did not have time to capture the president actually giving the address.

"Lincoln had a gift. He had the gift of a poet — being able to crystalize big ideas into a few words," Weber said. "It's etched in our memories in part because it is a beautiful piece; it's one of the greatest pieces of writing in American letters," said Jennifer Weber, associate professor of history at the University of Kansas.

The Gettysburg Address captured the aims of the American Civil War effort precisely, Weber said. "It's about saving the union, and when Lincoln talks about a 'government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from this earth,' he's talking about a republican (lowercase 'r') form of government. There was only one other country on the planet that had that form of government at the time. And that was Switzerland. Lincoln was very concerned about saving the republic not just because it was his country, but also because of what it meant to the world," she said. And, of course, the "new birth of freedom" means emancipation of slaves.

Lincoln had always opposed slavery, once writing to a friend, "If slavery is not wrong, nothing is wrong." But he was also a realist and understood that the practice was protected by the Constitution. The war pushed him to issue the Emancipation Proclamation, which later was formalized with the 13th Amendment.

Lincoln was also a great politician, Weber said, understanding give and take. He was not so far in front of public opinion as to lose support for his actions. But by the time of the Gettysburg Address, he was firmly committed to the dual war aims of ending slavery and saving the union.

"This was his chance to lay down the marker and also to acknowledge the tremendous loss of life that had taken place in the war already by that point. He needed to motivate Americans to stick it with to see that these men shall not have died in vain," Weber said.

"Lincoln is such an interesting guy," Weber said. "He had maybe nine months of formal education. Everything else he learned was self-taught. He read the Bible, Shakespeare and Aesop's Fables. You can particularly see the influence of the Bible and Shakespeare in the Gettysburg Address."

With Lincoln, you saw someone who was a very, very gifted communicator who was able to make people understand what he was doing and why. He kept them in the loop. The Gettysburg Address is a great example of that."

Where's Honest Abe?

The Gettysburg Address

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate -- we can not consecrate -- we can not hallow -- this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract.

The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us -- that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion -- that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain -- that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom -- and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

-- Abraham Lincoln

Driven By Innovation

From the company's first patent in 1920 for a convertible cultivator tractor, to the more than 20 U.S. patents it received in 2012, Toro has obtained over 800 U.S. patents – in addition to many corresponding patents outside the U.S. Toro demonstrates its commitment to innovation by annually dedicating at least 3 percent of net sales to research and new product development. Recently, in the Minneapolis/St. Paul Business Journal's list of annual R&D spending among Minnesota public companies, Toro ranked 11th with investments of just over $60 million in fiscal 2012.

The combination of intensive product development and a deep understanding of customer needs has enabled Toro to achieve and maintain market leadership. In 1919 at the request of The Minikahda Club in Minnesota, Toro created a mechanized mowing machine to replace horse-drawn equipment typically used by golf courses at that time. After Minikahda put the new machine to the test, the chairman of the grounds committee, Senator William F. Brooks, predicted it would "revolutionize the cutting of grass on golf courses." His prediction came true and helped establish Toro as the leader in the industry.

Industry Leading Products

Understanding the needs of its customers and empowering product development teams to strive for innovation enables Toro to deliver industry-leading advancements in its products. This focus has created all-new product categories, increased customer productivity, and advanced more efficient use of resources. Recent revolutionary products include:

Toro® Greensmaster® eFlex® walk greens mower – Making its debut at championship venues, the Greensmaster eFlex walk greens mower is the industry's first lithium-ion battery-powered greens mower and can mow up to nine greens on a single charge, which is nearly double that of competitive battery products.

- Toro® Groundsmaster® 360 rotary mower – Pioneering an all-new rotary mower category, this innovative machine features all-wheel steering to maximize commercial mowing productivity and versatility.

- Toro® Precision™ Soil Sensor – Leveraging the same wireless sensing technology used on golf courses and sports fields, this award-winning product helps homeowners maximize irrigation efficiency by continuously measuring moisture levels in the soil and allowing the controller to water only when the soil needs moisture.

- Toro® Precision™ Series spray nozzles – Considered the most significant breakthrough in irrigation spray nozzle technology in over 60 years, this product easily retrofits to existing systems and reduces water usage by up to 30 percent.

- Toro® Evolution™ Controller – This revolutionary irrigation controller features an intuitive digital interface that provides simple operation, expandability and smart control.

- Toro® TimeCutter® SS zero-turn mower – This machine takes zero-turn mowers to the next level with the innovative Smart Speed™ feature that pairs greater control with time-saving speed and maneuverability.

- Toro® TimeMaster™ and Turf-Master™ 30" wide-area walk power mowers – This all-new category in walk-behind mowers delivers a high-performing machine for homeowners and landscape contractors that significantly reduces mowing time compared to 21-inch walk-behind mowers.

- Toro® TRX Trencher – This highly innovative, dedicated tracked trencher provides unsurpassed maneuverability and productivity to help contractors and homeowners make quick work of difficult landscape projects.

- Unique Lighting Systems Hub – The Unique® Hub wiring system accommodates larger jobs and longer runs in landscape lighting, while maintaining a desired luminosity.

"As we head into our next century, Toro will continue to build on the strong foundation that has driven our company's success in our first 100 years," said Michael J. Hoffman, Toro's chairman and chief executive officer. "We are committed to building trusted relationships with our customers, and to creating innovative products that help them better care for their outdoor environments. As Kenneth Goit, the company's third president, may have said it best, 'The success of this company is no secret. It has been due to two simple things: building a good product and treating customers honestly and fairly.'"

About The Toro Company

The Toro Company (NYSE: TTC) is a leading worldwide provider of innovative turf, landscape, rental and construction equipment, and irrigation and outdoor lighting solutions. With sales of more than $1.9 billion in fiscal 2012, Toro's global presence extends to more than 90 countries through strong relationships built on integrity and trust, constant innovation, and a commitment to helping customers enrich the beauty, productivity and sustainability of the land.
