Lincoln Lemieux Opens Pro Snocross Season With First And Second Place Finishes In Duluth

Hunter Patenaude Second In Pro Lite

Aurora, Minn. (November 26, 2018) - Lincoln Lemieux completed the nearly perfect weekend by winning the AMSOIL Championship Snocross Pro final on Sunday at Spirit Mt. in Duluth, Minnesota.

Lemieux led the main event from start to finish after his Ski-Doo 600 RS launched into the lead from an outside starting position. He also won one of two qualifying races earlier in the day and was in a position to win the other when he was pushed off the track at the bottom of the start straight.

Lincoln also jumped to an early lead in Saturday night's main event before dropping one position to finish second. "I just got tight and forgot to breathe," said Lemieux. "I could see Elias Ishoel's bumper every time we came into the downhill corner and just didn't relax enough to ride my own race. When you lead a lot of the first race of the year it is almost like learning to win all over, but I wasn't going to let it happen again and am glad we came out with the win on Sunday."

Hunter Patenaude also finished second in the Pro Lite class on Saturday, putting on a charge and closing in on the winner at the finish line. Patenaude was 13th on Sunday but leaves Duluth in the thick of the class point standings.

Throughout the week, the team took part in two school visits for the U.S. Air Force, awarding our Race to the Future Scholarships at each stop. We were also involved with displays throughout the area, including the Acme Tool store in Duluth and the U.S. Air Force booth at the race venue. The team is participating with Operation Vets Now all season and will be honoring local fallen heroes from across the country during the series.

Up next is Snow King Mountain in Jackson Hole, Wyoming on December 7-8.
